

POWER LINES

The Environment Agency have recently granted permission for the thermal treatment of the waste wood by Welland Bio Power at Pebble Hall Farm, clearing the way for the commissioning of the unit.

The permit allows the treatment of wood within four sealed gasification units, producing gas that will be used to drive a steam turbine to generate electricity. The maximum throughput of the plant will be 72,000 tonnes per annum, which will be in the form of inert non-hazardous wood waste stored for use in banded units within the site. The projected output of the plant is 10.6MW, which will feed into the National Grid via underground cable. Exhaust from the plant will be via a 35m high stack with four-stage emissions control. Residues will be processed and recycled, or removed from the site.

LIVE WIRES

Now that our telephone exchange has been upgraded to fibre optic Broadband, full fibre cabling is tantalisingly close! At present, fibre technology is linking the exchange to the distribution points around the area and giving a much improved service by all accounts. However, the system is still being slowed down by the old copper-wired technology that brings the service the last stage into our homes.

Locally, service provider, Virgin Media are promoting the extension of fibre optic cabling directly from the exchange to the door with an underground cable network and promising even greater speeds.

They are calling for people to register an interest in cabling by visiting www.cablemystreet.virginmedia.com. The more people that register in the area, the more likely we are to get cabled-up!

ROAD SENSE

Skanska UK, the construction company leading the works at the M1/M6/A14 interchange at Catthorpe have won a major industry award for their considerate approach to local communities. The project, with a total cost of around £180m was judged on the standard of management across the site, their consideration for the wider environment and the impact on neighbouring communities. The majority of the work has had to be undertaken with the junction open to traffic and the team were singled out for the exemplary site safety record and their care for the workforce and the general public. The team was commended especially for their community engagement and their work with local villages.

Skanska have engaged with the Welford Action Group from the start and have endeavoured to reduce the impact of diverted traffic, especially HGVs, along the A5199 and A4304.

GOOD HEALTH

The letter in last month's Bugle Postbag, outlining Bosworth Surgery's response to the Care Quality Commission's unfavourable report on some aspects of the standard of management has, understandably, generated a lot of interest amongst patients.

The Surgery management have been at pains to point out that the issues raised by the report related to procedural matters, that the quality of clinical care was never questioned and that the issues raised in the report have quickly been addressed.

The report itself is available to view in its entirety on-line and although a bit of a heavy read, is well worth a look for those who may still have lingering concerns.

The link to the report is <http://www.cqc.org.uk/location/1-557812001>.

The Historical Society recently made a visit to the police helicopter base at Sulby. The unit, previously operating on behalf of the counties of Northamptonshire, Leicestershire and Warwickshire, now provides air support for central England as part of the National Police Air Service. For those who wonder where the helicopter is off to at 2.00am the team have an interesting Twitter feed, @NPAS_HusBos, where they post information about their current 'shouts'.

POSTBAG

From Sue Dhillon, Bell Lane

Exactly a year ago I wrote in the Bugle about my forthcoming trip to the Zhodino Orphanage in Belarus. Then in December's issue I reported on my time there; maybe it was just for seven days, but what a wonderful, fulfilling and stressful experience it was! In June, to raise money for funds and supplies, we ran a stall at Bosworth Festival, stocked entirely with donations from Bosworth residents. We were overwhelmed by your generosity. Takings from that stall, along with monies from an auction, have enabled well over £1,000 to be sent to these deprived and unloved children.

So, again this year, I am asking for donations of anything re-saleable, such as bric-a-brac, clothes, books, garden and house plants, etc, and cash donations! Gift Aid forms are available to magnify your tax deductible gift.

Leaves of Hope is a British-registered charity, number 107782, and ensures that every penny donated goes straight to the orphanage. You can find more about it at www.leaves-of-hope.co.uk

Please call Sue Dhillon on 881251 or Eleanor Murphy on 880476 if you have any donations (we can arrange collection), or if you feel you can help in any way. Thank you again!!

From Jean Hankin, Welford Road

The total raised from the village in the recent door to door collection in aid of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution was £63.03. A big thank-you to all who contributed. This year I was the only collector for the whole village and will not be available to collect in the future. New collectors are badly needed. If you are able to consider spending a few hours to support this very worthwhile cause next year please contact me on 880519 or at 38, Welford Road.

From Diana Jones, All Saints Church Warden

My thanks go to all who helped in any way with the Celebration of Marriage, especially those who came to set up the displays and help with the refreshments. The displays of dresses, quilts and memorabilia were lovely, the refreshments excellent and the church looked beautiful. Grateful thanks must also go to those who supported us at the weekend and also those who gave donations.

The money raised, £350, will go towards repairing the South Aisle roof, which needs to be replaced in the next 18 months. We have applied for a Government grant but will not know the outcome until the end of June. Unfortunately this will not cover the whole £20,000 required, so we still have some fundraising to do. Please continue to support your village church.

BOSWORTH IN FOCUS

A ROUND-UP OF LOCAL NEWS

MIKRON THEATRE

The Mikron Travelling Theatre makes a welcome return to The Wharf Inn, Welford on Thursday, June 16th when they bring their brand new production, Canary Girls to the open air garden stage.

It's the summer of 1914, and sisters Rose and Lizzie work as maids, in a world of deference, bed-making and poor pay. When war breaks, adventure-seeking Rose becomes a munitions worker, and persuades her sister to follow her to a world offering more money, exciting work and union activity. It seems like a new start...

But as the sisters discover the dangers of shell work, they realise their dreams are pulling in opposite directions. As old and new worlds collide on the factory floor, each sister must ultimately decide what takes more courage - following your dreams, or giving them up for the ones you love?

Funny, heartfelt and tender. Mikron presents a tale of two sisters well and truly at war!

The show starts at 7.30pm - there is no charge for entry but donations are requested. Full show info and dates at: www.mikron.org.uk

WILD ABOUT BOSWORTH

Hedgehog - Erinaceus Europaeus

Recently, whilst tidying up some fallen leaves, I unearthed a snoozing hedgehog. Since they are becoming increasingly rare, it was good to see one of these delightful characters. Their population has fallen from around 36 million in the 1950s to fewer than a million today!

Except for mother and hoglets, they are solitary creatures and it's rare to see more than an individual. However, if you spot a group of them, the collective noun is an "array" or, more poetically, a "prickle".

Hoglets, or urchins as they are known, are born with a membrane covering a set of juvenile spines, doubtless to the great relief of their mother! Within a few weeks these spines are replaced with the quills that form their adult defensive jacket.

Returning to the topic of their population decline, there are lots of things we, as individuals, can do. Perhaps top of the list is to ensure they can get into our gardens. Hedgehogs forage far and wide each evening and, though they are capable of squeezing through the tiniest opening, a solid fence will defeat their breaking and entering skills. Cutting a small access hole and making your garden hedgehog friendly will help their survival.

Google 'slugs' on the internet and you'll discover dozens of sites selling poisons, traps and barriers. Perhaps herein lies a clue to the urban hedgehogs' decline. This may be heresy to gardeners, but how about setting aside a dark corner where slugs and beasts are encouraged and welcome?

For a fuller list of pro-hedgehog 'do's and don'ts', visit the British Hedgehog Preservation Society website (BHPS) www.britishhedgehogs.org.uk. Besides monetary donations, you can also support this worthwhile charity with contributions of used stamps and old coins.

BYGONE BOSWORTH

Images from the Historical Society's Archive Collection

Dog walkers and ramblers will recognise this month's picture as the pipe bridge over the canal east of the village - a feature of canal life for many years. Leicester-based canal boat captain, John Seymour would recount stories of the boat women on the leading narrowboat of a 'working pair' who would prepare lunch and hoist it up onto the metalwork of the bridge for the steerer of the towed 'butty' to retrieve as he passed. Foolhardy 'young 'uns' would take the opportunity of transferring from the 'motor' to the 'butty' by hanging monkey-like from the bridge, dropping down onto the following boat as it passed underneath. Of course, mischievous steerers would sometimes steer to one side leaving the unfortunate youngster flailing in mid-air!

Anyway, the pipe bridge, apart from providing boundless entertainment for boaters boasts an all-the-more interesting history, which goes back to local flying activities during World War II. The logistical nightmare of warfare included the shipping of vast quantities of aviation fuel around the country to supply the multitude of air bases. Early on it became obvious that a secure fuel supply to the airfields would be needed, as immune as possible to enemy action. The government's response was to order the installation of a network of underground pipes linking oil importing ports, refineries and dispersed storage facilities.

Locally the network manifested itself in a vast underground storage facility, which still exists alongside the moribund Market Harborough to Northampton railway at Arthingworth, near Kelmars, from which sub-supplies could be easily transhipped by rail or road. This pipeline network, eventually extended to over 1,000 miles, would later be linked to PLUTO - 'Pipe Line Underwater Transportation of Oil' (later corrupted to the more user-friendly Pipe Lines Under The Ocean), which, in popular legend famously supplied the Normandy invasion forces.

RAF Bruntingthorpe was opened in 1942 as an Operational Training Unit, operating the same weary Vickers Wellingtons that Husbands Bosworth would host shortly afterwards. After the war Bruntingthorpe was 'mothballed' and used for temporary storage until 1957 when it was transferred to the United States Air Force and commissioned as a nuclear bomber base. As a front-line 'Cold War' base it was decided that Bruntingthorpe should have a secure fuel supply and a 6" pipeline from the Kelmars depot was installed, our pipe bridge being the visible evidence within Husbands Bosworth parish.

The Bruntingthorpe fuel link was probably discontinued when the American forces left in 1962. However, most of the national pipeline network is still in use and continues to supply 40% of all aviation fuel used in the UK, directly to point of use, including Stansted, Manchester, Heathrow and Gatwick airports, and 'significant military establishments'!

The cost of entry is £4 per person, with teas an additional £3.

Although we have booked a set number of visitors in our group booking, for the benefit of the guides and refreshments, the gardens will also be open to the public.

We will be meeting on The Green at 1.00pm to be at the gardens for a 2.00pm start.

CHURCH NEWS

All Saints Parish Church, Methodist Chapel & St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church

LETTER FROM THE RECTORY

The new Bishop of Leicester, The Right Reverend Martyn Snow, was welcomed at Leicester Cathedral last month. Those who attended were asked to wear red, yellow or orange to reflect the fact that the weekend also saw the church celebrating the festival of Pentecost when we remember the occasion when the Holy Spirit was first given to the church. Bishops from Leicester's partner dioceses in other countries were there to anoint Bishop Martyn when he arrived, the Archbishop of Canterbury sent his deputy, the Dean of Canterbury Cathedral, to do the official bit, and the Registrars did the legal bits. Once the formalities were over and a hymn or two sung, everyone in the cathedral was directed out into the cathedral gardens where the rest of the service took place. Outside a band led more singing, a member of the Bishop's Youth Council read the lesson, the Bishops preached and children from across the diocese led the prayers, complete with bubble machines pouring bubbles out across the crowd, the bubbles representing the people of the whole diocese. The second part of the service was open to everyone - no tickets required, and a party followed with a steel band to entertain with hot food and drinks for all.

The Bishop's sermon was nicely timed to coincide with other celebrations in Leicester that weekend, with the Leicester City Football Club celebrating their success. The Bishop said he thought we should have more parties; parties with prayer. He didn't specify in which way the combining of partying and prayer should happen - sometimes answered prayer gives us cause to party; there are times when the activity of prayer lifts our hearts to a party mood and there may be times when partying reminds us of good things, engenders a sense of well-being and encourages us to lift our prayers of thanks and praise.

As we embark on the long church season of Pentecost, let's take his message to heart with more parties and more prayer in whatever way we can. Liz
